Meeting the challenges of Agriculture and Forestry with Commissioner Bob Odom

Cool temperatures and abundant soil moisture make this the ideal time for landowners to plant tree seedlings in Louisiana, Agriculture and Forestry Commissioner Bob Odom says.

To help landowners with their reforestation projects, the Department of Agriculture and Forestry's annual pine and hardwood seedling sale is in full swing with plenty of both varieties still available.

"We've ended a three-year cycle of drought that prevented a lot of people from reforesting their lands after timber harvests, and those who did plant saw much of their crop suffer high levels of mortality," Odom says. "But, now the weather is great and soil moisture levels are the best we've had in four years."

Pine seedling packets come in a minimum order of a thousand seedlings. Pine seedlings available include superior loblolly, advanced generation loblolly and slash pine.

Charles Matherne, reforestation chief for the department, says the superior loblolly seedlings have a 14 percent to 18 percent gain in growth over wild seedlings, which means they will be mature enough for harvest in nine to 12 years versus 15 to 17 years for other trees.

"We have bred pine trees specifically for application in Louisiana for about 35 years and improved their genetics greatly," Matherne explains. "Through selective parent breeding we've not only increased the growth rate, but also have improved wood quality and disease resistance."

Matherne also mentions that the advanced generation loblolly has a 24 percent to 34 percent gain in growth over wild seedlings, and the slash pine has a 30 percent to 34 percent gain in growth paired with an exceptional resistance to rust cankers over wild seedlings.

Hardwood seedlings are available in about 35 species including water oak, native sweet pecan, river birch and sweet gum. Hardwood packets require a minimum order of 50 seedlings.

For information about ordering seedling packets, call any district office of the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry or visit the Web site www.ldaf.state.la.us and click on "seedling sales." Seedling inventories are updated weekly on the site and a downloadable order form is also available for printing.

"Many people don't realize it, but timber is the number one agricultural crop grown in this state. We have nearly 14 million acres of trees growing in Louisiana forests that are a vital component of the state's economy," Odom notes of the $5 billion industry. "By planting pine and hardwood seedlings, we continue contributing to the health of our environment and to the well-being of the state's economic future."

Joey and Denise Olivier of Arnaudville stand in front of one of the prizes for winning the American Farm Bureau 2002 Achievement Award. The Olivier's are the first contestants from Louisiana to take home the top prize.

St. Landry rice producers named top farmers in nation

Joey and Denise Olivier, rice and crawfish farmers from Arnaudville, in St. Landry Parish, were named the nation's top young farmers by the American Farm Bureau Federation during its annual convention here.

The couple was named Louisiana's state winners at the Louisiana Farm Bureau convention in July and traveled to Reno to compete against more than three dozen young farmers from across the country. Top prize included a Dodge 3500 Ram pickup truck valued at more than $41,000.

"We were just so excited and grateful to have gotten this far," Joey Olivier, 35, said after being handed the keys to pickup. "We had our hopes up when we weren't among the four runners-up." "When they called out our name I couldn't believe it," said Denise. "The first thing we did was call Joey's mom."

The Oliviers also farm soybeans, corn, wheat and grain sorghum over 3,300 acres near Arnaudville. The farm is part of Joey's family's larger 13,000-acre operation in St. Landry.

"I was fortunate to be born of a farming family," Olivier said back in July after being named Louisiana's top young farmer. "Throughout my four years of college, I commuted everyday back to the farm to perform work and management duties, including much of the on-farm record keeping and bookkeeping. In 1989, my wife and I acquired our own personal farming operation by using mostly used equipment on rented land. We've been farming ever since and now own more than 1,600 acres."

The American Farm Bureau's Young Farmer and Rancher Achievement Award recognizes young farmers whose operations typify diversity and a commitment to bringing a balance between earning a living and keeping resources in balance.

The Oliviers were part of a 70-member Louisiana delegation which traveled to Reno for the annual meeting of the nation's largest general farm organization. Farm Bureau President Ronnie

Anderson said the couple was a fitting choice in a time when farmers, young and old, are struggling against closed export markets and low farm prices.

"Joey and Denise are what young farmers are all about," Anderson said. "They're making a go of it, working hard, raising a family and keeping up the tradition of the family farm."

More than 4,000 farmers, ranchers and their families were in Reno for the four-day convention. Delegates to the convention set national farm policy on issues impacting all of American agriculture.

Much of that policy will be directed to lawmakers in Washington still trying to draft the next farm bill. Issues to be considered during the event include federal supports for farmers over the next 10 years, opening of more export markets for U.S. farm products and environmental legislation which allows farmers to adhere to federal guidelines while producing crops at profitable levels.

Fruit and Vegetable Growers Conference and Trade Show set for February 6 - 8

Fruit and vegetable growers from Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi will meet in Biloxi, Miss., Feb. 6-8 for the 2002 Ark-La-Miss Fruit and Vegetable Growers’ Conference and Trade Show.

This year’s educational event marks the fourth year growers from the three states have come together for such a meeting. It will be held at the President Casino Broadwater Towers Hotel in Biloxi.

“The benefit of having a tri-state meeting and trade show is the development of relationships between the growers, extension and research people and vendors from the different states,” said Dr. Jimmy Boudreaux, extension vegetable specialist with the LSU AgCenter.

The tri-state meeting will include educational sessions on direct marketing, fruit and vegetable production, and will also feature a large trade show. “We are expecting more than 40 vendors at the show,” said trade show coordinator Guy Feltenstein of the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce. “The trade show will be made up of fruit tree nurseries, seed companies, chemical companies, equipment manufacturers, fertilizer manufacturers, drip irrigation companies, box companies and a number of other suppliers of interest to fruit and vegetable growers.”

The conference begins Feb. 6 with several sessions on direct marketing that afternoon and will also include an evening session for farmers who are just entering the business.

Keynote speakers are Richard and Marilyn Tanner, apple growers from Speer, Ill., who will explain how their apple orchard progressed from a wholesale operation into a profitable direct marketing operation. The Tanners are nationally known speakers on the direct marketing of fruit and vegetables.

The Feb. 7 program will consist of four concurrent tracks with sessions on fruits, vegetables, blueberries and organic production. These sessions will be conducted in 30-minute segments - thus allowing individuals to pick and choose a variety of sessions to attend.

During an evening session of Feb. 7, Dr. Doug Sanders, extension vegetable specialist with North Carolina State University, will speak about current trends in the fruit and vegetable industry in the southeastern states. Business meetings for different state organizations will be held on Feb. 8.

Registration for the meeting is $40 per person and includes membership dues in a state growers association, a lunch buffet and a reception. A spouse’s registration fee of $20 is available and includes the lunch and reception.

For more information on the meeting, contact J. Boudreaux at (225) 578-2222.

Sugarcane Harvest coming to an end--freeze damage not yet seen

The recent hard freeze in South Louisiana hasn’t stopped the sugarcane harvest, but it has placed pressure on some growers to get remaining cane out of the fields quickly, according to experts at the LSU AgCenter.

Since freezing temperatures tend to stop sugar production and lead to deterioration of sugarcane, the few farmers who still have cane in the fields need to complete the harvest before the weather turns sour, the experts say. “Sucrose doesn’t deteriorate overnight, but the clock is ticking,” said Dr. Kenneth Gravois, director of the LSU AgCenter’s Sugar Research Station at St. Gabriel, adding, “Warm and rainy weather will increase deterioration. “But as long as the weather is cool and refrigerator-like, the crop will keep in the fields.”

Gravois explained there’s a window of one to two weeks to get the remainder of the crop harvested. But there isn’t much sugarcane left in the fields. What’s left should be harvested before the crop in the field shows major deterioration, Gravois said.

Of the 17 mills in Louisiana, only three were still operating Jan. 9 and were expected to finish by the end of the week, according to Charlie Melancon, president and general manager of the American Sugar Cane League in Thibodaux.

Gravois said this year’s yields are in the top five historically for the state but are not as good as the 1999 or 2000 crops.

“1999 and 2000 were records,” he said. “This year is above average. All in all, it’s a good crop.” Melancon agrees. “Overall, the crop was a decent crop. It matched last year’s harvest,” he said.

Melancon estimates the final harvest will average slightly more than 33 tons of cane per acre with sugar yield about 5 pounds per ton more than last year’s crop.

“There were some pockets where farmers were devastated by weather abnormalities where yields were 30-35 percent below expectations,” he added.

Although farmers were hampered by rains a couple of times, Melancon said about 90 percent of the harvest was uneventful.

The final figures on this year’s crop are incomplete, the LSU AgCenter reported the 2000 crop produced nearly $363 million in on-farm income and almost $232 million in value-added income in Louisiana.

Louisiana Farmers can laugh...you may be a farmer if

- ◆ You wear specific hats to farm sales, livestock auctions, customer appreciation suppers, and vacations.
- ◆ You've never thrown away a 5 gallon bucket.
- ◆ You can remember the fertilizer rate, seed population, herbicide rate and yields on a farm you rented 10 years ago, but cannot recall your wife's birthday.
- ◆ You have driven off the road while examining your neighbors crops.
- ◆ You wave at every vehicle whether you know them or not.
- ◆ Your early morning prayer covers rain, cattle and pigs.
- ◆ You listen to "Paul Harvey" every day at noon.
- ◆ You don't buy all of your vegetables at the grocery store.
- ◆ You go to the State Fair for your family vacation.
- ◆ You get up at 5:30 a.m. and go down to the coffee shop.
- ◆ And finally, if given $1,000,000 you would keep right on farming. You'd farm differently, but you would keep farming because that is who and what you are.

Researchers release weevils to control invasive Salvinia weed

Scientists from the LSU AgCenter released larvae of a weevil in Cameron Parish December 20 in an effort to stem the spread of an invasive weed that was recently discovered in that area.

The weed – Salvinia molesta or giant salvinia – forms dense mats, which sometimes are several feet thick. It spreads rapidly and can completely clog a body of water.

Giant salvinia was first found in Louisiana at Toledo Bend Reservoir about three years ago, and LSU AgCenter researchers and others have been conducting research and using intensive chemical control measures to knock down the troublesome weed there.

Now, it’s moved outside that area, and officials say that could mean even more trouble. “It’s a bad problem in Cameron Parish,” said Dr. Dearl Sanders, a weed scientist with the LSU AgCenter and resident director of the LSU AgCenter’s Idlewild Research Station at Clinton.

Sanders said the weed can clog irrigation systems and even compete with rice crops if it’s introduced into rice fields.

The plant spreads naturally in bodies of water but also can be transported from one place to another on boats, boat trailers, equipment and other items to which it clings, so officials are urging hunters and fishermen to be cautious and wash down such items.

On December 19th the Cameron Parish Police Jury conducted helicopter surveillance and identified widespread areas of giant salvinia, according to Kevin Savoie, an area fisheries agent with the LSU AgCenter.

The infestation is greatest on the Cameron Drainage Canal, where observers identified an area 5-6 miles long and as wide as 2 miles, Savoie said. “In some places it’s 4-5 feet thick against bridges,” he said. “And we found it back into marshes and ponds – 4-5 acres in some places.”

Although officials are investigating chemical treatments, they can be expensive. That’s why the weevil is being introduced to Louisiana, according to Dr. Seth Johnson, a researcher in the LSU AgCenter’s Department of Entomology.

Johnson obtained the weevil larvae from the U. S. Department of Agriculture’s Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

The weevil larvae were released under a permit issued to the USDA APHIS laboratory in Mission, Texas, Johnson said. “I’m very optimistic about this project,” Johnson said. “The weather in South Louisiana is warm enough for the weevils to survive. Based on successes in Australia and Africa, I expect to see a dramatic impact.”

Johnson said he expects to see measurable results by this time next year with “control certainly evident in two years.”

The weevil eats only salvinia and doesn’t feed on other plants, Johnson emphasized, saying, “This project has a low cost and a high payoff.”

Sanders said the Louisiana Department of Wildlife and Fisheries and the Cameron Parish Drainage Board are investigating chemical treatments – although the scientists hope the weevils can replace expensive chemicals.

“Self-perpetuating biological controls can be effective tools at low costs,” Sanders said.

Savoie agreed and said spraying herbicides is hindered by cattle in the area, so officials are talking with landowners to move cattle, at least temporarily, so they can spray the salvinia.

“Everybody realizes this is a serious problem and we have to do something about it,” Savoie said. He emphasized the need for hunters and fishers to be aware of giant salvinia, to make sure they don’t move the plants to other waterways and to notify the LDWF if they think they’ve found the plant somewhere else.

Recipes from the Sportsmans Paradise

Roasted Quail Etouffee'
1 medium potato, peeled, cut in 1" pieces
*1 large leek, chopped
4 cups loosely packed fresh spinach
*1 tablespoon vegetable oil
Salt & pepper to taste
*8 dressed quail
*8 large Creole tomatoes
*½ cup vegetable oil
½ cup all-purpose flour
*1½ cups chopped onion
*½ cup chopped green bell pepper
*½ cup chopped celery
*2 cloves garlic, minced
*4 bay leaves
3 cups chicken broth
*2 teaspoons salt
*2 teaspoons thyme
*1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
*½ teaspoon sugar
*1/3 cup chopped green onions
*2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
*2 teaspoons cayenne pepper
*2 teaspoons hot sauce
Cornbread

Cook potato in boiling water 8 minutes or until tender. Drain and cool.
Cook leek & spinach in 1 tablespoon oil over medium heat 3 minutes or until wilted. Cool. Combine potato, leek mixture and salt and pepper to taste and spoon into cavities of quail. Place one leg over the other and secure with a toothpick. Place quail and tomatoes in a large roasting pan. Bake at 400 degrees for 45 minutes. Cool tomatoes slightly. Chop tomatoes, reserving liquid and set aside. Pour ½ cup oil into a large skillet or Dutch oven and place over medium-high heat until very hot. Add flour and cook, stirring constantly, 2-3 minutes until golden (do not burn). Add onion and next 4 ingredients. Cook 4-5 minutes until onion is tender. Gradually add chicken broth, stirring constantly. Add tomato, reserved liquid, 2 teaspoons salt and next 3 ingredients. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, for 1 hour. Stir in green onions and next ingredients. Add quail, breast side up and simmer 15 minutes. Remove and discard bay leaves. Serve quail mixture over cornbread. Serves 8.

All-Purpose Wild Game Marinade
1 cup water
*2 tablespoons vinegar
*1 lemon, sliced

½ dozen crushed peppercorns
2 - 3 carrot slices
*1 stalk green celery, chopped
*1 bay leaf
*2 or 3 sprigs parsley
2 or 3 crushed whole cloves
*1 tablespoon Creole seasoning
*2 cloves garlic
*1 onion, chopped fine
*2 tablespoons oil

Marinate overnight for all wild game, the longer the better.

Deer Patties
*2 pounds ground deer tenderloin
3 tablespoons very fine bread crumbs
*2 tablespoons grated onion
*2 teaspoons salt
*1 egg lightly beaten
½ teaspoon turmeric
*¼ teaspoon chili powder
*¼ teaspoon garlic salt
*1/8 teaspoon pepper
½ cup margarine or clear bacon fat
1/3 cup water

Blend first 9 ingredients thoroughly, leaving out garlic or onion if you prefer. Shape into patties. Place in margarine or bacon fat and brown. When browned add water and cover. Simmer 1½ hours.

Onion-Roasted Venison
*4 pound rump or shoulder roast
Cooking fat
*Salt & pepper
1 package dry onion soup mix
½ cup water

Brown roast in cooking fat on all sides on top of stove. Season with salt and pepper. Sprinkle package of onion soup mix on and around roast. Add water. Cook in 300 degree oven in covered pan until tender. Serves 6.

Wild Duck and Yams
*1 Wild duck
*1 teaspoon salt
*1 teaspoon pepper
½ cup shortening
*2 small onions, quartered
3 stalks celery (cut in half)
*8 orange slices
*4 yams, sliced lengthwise
1 apple, quartered
*1 cup orange juice
*1 cup red wine

Wash duck and pat dry. Salt and pepper duck inside and out. Pour oil in Dutch oven and brown duck on all sides. Add enough water to partially cover duck. Place onions and celery alongside of duck.

Cover and simmer for about 1½ hours with breast of duck down. Keep adding water to cover about half the duck. Test for tenderness with a fork. Place cut yams and apples around duck. Add 1 cup orange juice and 1 cup wine. Cover and simmer until the yams are partially cooked. Place orange slices on top of yams and simmer until yams are tender. Arrange duck on platter surrounded by yams, orange slices, celery stalks, grapes and kumquats. Strain gravy and place in separate bowl. Serve duck with wild rice. Makes 4 servings.

Small Game Mulligan
*½ lb. meat (rabbit, squirrel, duck)
4 medium potatoes, peeled & cubed
*1 medium onion, chopped
*2 16 ounce bottles chili sauce
*Salt & pepper to taste

Cook meat in pressure cooker until it falls off the bones. Remove bones (watch out for steel shot if using ducks). Boil potatoes and onions in broth until almost done. Add chili sauce and meat and finish cooking. Serve with crackers.
